Free Up Space Quickly

Surplus equipment takes up valuable space at your facility or at expensive contract warehouses. If the equipment is idle, you can take advantage of consignment, and remarketing options simultaneously. These options clear up space in your facility and recover funds spend on previous investments.

Reduce Risk

When your plans include a strict deadline for clearing your facility, surplus equipment can get in the way, which may lead to delays and missed opportunities for recovering revenue. With EquipNet's global options for storing your equipment on consignment, we enable you to pursue high-return options since your project's time constraints and facility space are no longer a concern.

More Economical

EquipNet's requires you to pay only for the space you use each month, with no long-term commitments required. Contract warehouses normally charge you a fixed rate each month regardless of the amount of space you're utilizing. EquipNet's expert warehouse team ensures that you only pay for the space you use, and that amount automatically decreases as you move items out of the consignment warehouse.
